System Description: The professional model features a dual scale on the face. The outer ring is the original calibration scale printed in black. A new inner scale in red has been added and is identified by the NAEP/ATS24 terminology. This meter is designed for clinical use in hospitals, chest clinics, allergy clinics, and general practice. The Wright Peak Flow Meter provides a simple and rapid test for the diagnosis and management of conditions such as asthma, chronic bronchitis, and emphysema. It can be used to distinguish reversible from irreversible airway obstructions by measuring the Peak Expiratory Flow before and after use of bronchodilator drugs. It is of particular value in the control of corticosteroid and cromoglyconate therapy for asthma.
